Democrats to Meet in This City Next Week.

W. D. Bynum has returned from his Eastern journey and has called the executive committee of the National Democratic party to meet in this city Dec. 10. "It is the intention," said he to a Journal reporter last evening, "to continue the work of our organization right along during the next four years. We shall perfect it and extend it to States in which we have not been able to do anything this year, and shall organize more thoroughly in all the States than we were able to do in the short time we were at work in the campaign. The work of distributing literature will progress right along.'

"This does not look much as if you had reached the conclusion while in the East that the two wings of the Democratic party will get together." was suggested. There seems to be little idea that they will," replied Mr. Bynum, "either there or

M'KINLEY'S PLURALITY GROWS. Now Discovered to Be 18,226 in This State. When the State canvassing bcard, composed of Democratic marshals appointed by Governor Matthews, canvassed the vote of Marshall county it was found that no votes were credited to the Bryan electors as Populists. The clerk of the county had aggregated their vote in the Democratic column, noting the fact that the Populist ticket had received forty-five votes. Though the figures on the State ticket showed plainly that these forty-five votes had been included in the aggregate, the board insisted upon counting them over again. Deputy Secretary of State Brown wrote to Marshall county and got in return a duplicate of the tally sheet, showing that the Populist vote had thus been counted twice. Thus McKinley's plurality in Indiana is really 18 22% instead of 18 181 Indiana is really 18,226, instead of 18,181, as the official count gives it. The secretary of state has not yet given out official footings upon the vote for State officers. The returns have been transcribed into the record book, and both this book and the returns have been open to inspec-tion by reporters and others who desired to make figures. Unofficial totals were thus made up and published. Thus in a publication made a couple of weeks ago, it has been discovered, Mr. Scholz was cred-ited with 1,000 more votes than he received in Brown county.

Captain McCrea for Wallace. The interview with Senator Wishard in Monday's Journal wherein he stated that the representative from General Wallace's own county was for Mr. Fairbanks for United States senator, yesterday brought Capt. Lew Wallace." to the Journal the following dispatch from

SCULPTOR PARK'S BACCHANTE

A Beautiful Work Now Exhibited in This City.

Every artist desires to paint a picture or carve a statue which shall make him famous, and which shall be presented to the world and known for ages to come. R. H. Park, the sculptor, chose for the subject toward which to bend his best energies the ever-elusive Bacchante, which has tempted as many artists to give form to as almost any other object in the world. The success which rewarded Mr. Park may be known by the gold medal which he received for the statue from the Society for the Encouragement of Art of Florence. The figof the room of Ward's art store, on North Pennsylvania street, the figure stands. Back of it is a crimson curtain, and its surroundings consist of a few tropical plants. The figure, which is of life size, is on a revolving pedestal, which slowly turns and gives a perfect view in its entirety. The figure is of the finest Italian marble, is of a young woman gracefully grapevine, which twines over her hair and neck, is held lightly by the left arm and crosses the body. There is close approach to perfection in every line and curve of the beautiful creature. The grapes, which are held in one hand, just above and away from the lips, are translacent in their quality, and the flesh seems as if it might move. There is exquisite grace and beauty in the statue, and the sculptor has etched the marble until it is soft to the eye. The expression in the face is so fine that the beauty of the form is almost lost while contemplating it. There is joyousness and careless happiness in the delicate lines about the eyes, and in the dimples and the softness of the cheeks and chin. The model for the figure was a peasant girl of Italy. who was seventeen years old. She was ac-cidentally found by Mr. Park, and she posed for him for six months. He was two years making the figure, and he values it $5,000. A private view of the Bacchante was given yesterday, and General Wallace and others who have seen the great works of the world were warm in their praises. The figure is to be on exhibition for several days. Mr. Park, the sculptor, is here with In Boston the exhibit of a Bacchante, by Macmonnies, in the court of the Library building, has created a great deal of discussion. It was offered as a gift, but was first rejected on account of its nudity and afterwards accepted.

DESERVED A BIGGER AUDIENCE.

First Concert of the Indianapolis Orchestra-The Soloist.

The first concert of the Indianapolis orchestra, which it is hoped will be the nucleus of a permanent organization in this city, was given last evening at English's Opera House. The audience was small and there was a notable absence of many who clamor for music in Indianapolis. The orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Alexander Ernestinoff and consists of fortyfive men, most of whom are well-known musicians of this city. The concert, as a whole, was good. There was a preponderance of brasses in some of the numbers, but for the heavy numbers, such as La Fete from Massenett's "Scenes Napolitan," and the Festival March, which was the opening selection. they were admirable. The orchestra is well balanced as to instruments and the playing for the most part was full of vigor and spirited. Mr. Ernestinoff is a quiet leader and whatever force there is in the orchestra is not evident from his demeanor. There was a varied programme. The familiar overture to "Oberon," by Weber; the "Noc-turne" in E flat Op. 9." by Chopin, and two Spanish dances by Moszowski were given. The chief interest and enthusiasm was in the "Scenes Napolitan," by Massanet, which are characteristic of the Mardi Gras and other festivals. The four parts illus-trate the "Dance," the "Procession," the "Improvisateur" and the "Fete." There was the clatter of the tambourine, for the dance; the passing of the fancifully dressed participators in the fete; the improvisations on the simple theme and the grand finale, which shows the fete at its height and all the dash and brilliancy of the scene. In this selection the playing of the orchestra was characterised by a firmness of attack and harmony in its unison passages that was about the neatest work of the evening. One peculiarly beautiful effect was that of the ringing of the deep-toned bells and their vibrations. The orchestral part closed with the "Waf-

fentanz," from Gudrun, by Klughardt.

The soloist of the evening was Miss Elise Dorst, of Cincinnati, a pupil of Tekia Vigna. Miss Dorst has a clear soprano voice of wonderfully sweet and even quality. Her first aria was the celebrated one from the "Queen of Sheba," by Gounod. Throughout the compass of the number her voice never lost its exquisite quality and smoothness and in her second part of the programme she gave "Bells in the Valley," by Weber, and "Bolero," by Verdi. The accompaniments for the latter were played on the plane by Mis. Ernesthoff. The fentanz," from Gudrun, by Klughardt.

"Bolero" was a gem and an artistic bit of vocalization. Miss Dorst has none of the dramatic quality either in her voice or physically. Her voice might be likened to a fine cameo, so clear, so pure, so sweet, even to the highest note. Miss Dorst is one of the most pleasing singers who has appeared here for some time Among the first concert patrons were Col. and Mrs. Eli Lilly, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Mayer, Mrs. William Scott, Mr. Henry Mr. and Mrs. Clemens Vonnegut, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wetzel, Dr. and Mrs. L. F. Page, Dr. and Mrs. R. I. Blakeman, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lieber, Mr. John Wocher, Mr. and Mrs. George Raschig, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hollweg and daughter, Mr. Joseph Becker and daughter, Mr. Ber-nard Vonnegut, Mr. S. E. Rauh, Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Schnull, Miss Haueisen, Mrs. B. D. Walcott, Miss Newcomer, Mrs. G. L. Rittenhouse, Mr. Max Leckner, Mr. W. G. Hunter and Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Lilly.

THE CLAYPOOL HOTEL.

Mr. Reibold Will Be the Principal Factor-Considering Plans.

E. F. Claypool, owner of the Bates House, says that it will be three or four weeks before he and Louis Reibold agree on definite plans for the new hotel that is to occupy the site of the Bates House. "Will Mr. Reibold become proprietor of the new hotel?" he was asked last night. "Mr. Reibold is the main factor, so far as the management of the hotel is concerned. I am only interested to the extent of building the house."
Mr. Claypool said that he and Mr. Reibold are now considering plans for the new hotel, but that at present there is nothing of interest to the public. It is understood, however, that the hotel building is to be one of the finest in the country,

WINDOW-GLASS MAKERS SIGN AN IRONCLAD AGREEMENT.

Only Seven Small Factories That Are Not Yet in the Powerful Combination-Two Sets of Officers.

The window-glass manufacturers of the United States were in session at the Denison House all day yesterday, completing their labors shortly before 6 o'clock. The result was the reorganization of both the old associations, that in the East to be called the Pittsburg Window-glass Company and that in the West the Western Glass Company. An ironclad agreement of great length was drawn up and signed by all the manufacturers present. Each company has practically the same constitution, and it contemplates that all the members thereof shall turn over the products of their respective factories to the sales agent of the company, who shall sell the glass to jobbers and account to the factory for the price of the glass, reserving 5 per cent. for a general fund for the use of the association. At the end of each year this reserve fund is returned to the manufacturers according as they have contributed it, or rather a portion of it, for the association always retains a certain amount from which fines and penalties can be taken.

The sales agent for the Eastern association will be located, as in the past, at Pittsburg, and that of the Western at Muncie. Each association has an executive committee composed of its officers and five others, and each of these executive committees will appoint for its association four members of a joint executive committee of eight. This joint executive committee is clothed by the agreement with plenary powers in making schedules of prices and in enforcing penalties for violation of the agreement, the chief crime in the calendar, of course, being the disposal of glass to anybody except through the sales agent of

Only four small factories in the West rerain outside the association and only three a the East, so the members believe that they have the window-glass market coppered up about as tight as it is possible to

The Western company elected the following officers: President, J. G. Sayre; vice president, J. E. Vandeventer; treasurer, H. B. Smith; secretary, L. S. Woodbridge. These officers and the following members compose the executive committee of the association: D. B. Cratty, Philip Matter, T. F. Hart, W. A. Gorby and A. K. Smith. The Western association will meet at Muncie next Friday to wind up the business of the old organization and transfer its accounts and belongings to the new one. F. T. Hart, who has controlled the sales for this association, insists upon retiring, and it is likely that some man not interested as a manufacturer will be employed to take up his work.

LOW SUPPLY OF GAS.

Companies Still Claim It Is Due to General Robbery.

Loud and numerous are the complaints against the low supply of natural gas. Many people say that the companies have not kept their promise of shutting off the factories. They say that through the night there seems to be sufficient gas, but that lower until there is not enough heat in kitchen stoves to fry eggs, while it is utterly out of the question to keep houses warm with heating stoves and grates. It is reperted that in the suburbs, particularly West Indianapolis, domestic users are substituting their gas stoves and grates with wood and coal stoves. Coal merchants, it is said, have orders ahead that they cannot fill for days to come. J. R. Pearson, manager of the Indianapolis Gas Company, says that that company has shut off the gas from most of the factories it has been supplying. He says that the number of people that are using gas directly from the half-inch pipe without mixers is surprising. He estimates that over 50 per cent. of the company's West Indianapolis patrons are doing this. He says that each fire that is connected in this way gets the gas that would supply twenty fires through mixers, and that it is no wonder honest consumers do not get sufficient gas. On Monday the company found one house on Illinois street that had five grates connected without mixers. He says that the company intends to stop this robbery and has sworn out warrants for persons who are violating their contracts and the laws of the State.

TWO FARMER GOVERNORS.

They Meet and Have a Little Social

The gubernatorial sanctum door creaked on its hinges yesterday and Governor-elect J. A. Mount stepped in to make a friendly little call on Governor Matthews and show that "there is no frost." No allusions were made to the duties of the office during the call, and it was simply a little social chat. Governor Matthews wheeled up the best chair in his private room, they both put their feet on the table, signifying the dismissal of formality, and talked over the conditions of crops and all subjects dear to the hearts of farmers. Governor-elect Mount spent the day in the Capitol, as he is preparing data to be used in his inaugural address. There was much handshaking. The Governor-elect sticks to his determination not to announce any additional appointments for some time. His private secretary, Charles E. Wilson, will soon begin his duties.

State Agricultural Board. A called meeting of the executive board of the State fair was held in the Statehouse yesterday for the purpose of allowing claims and attending to general routine business. Arrangements were made to hold the sale of the American Duroc-Jersey Swine Sale Association at the fair grounds Jan. 27. The annual delegate meeting of the State Board of Agriculture will be held Jan. 5, and yesterday the programme was made out. There will be addresses by Mayor Taggart, Governor Matthews and the president of the State board. Then will follow the appointment of committees, nemination of eight members and reports from the different officers. The election of the nominated members will take place in the afternoon, after which the meeting will be Berringer readily and smilingly agreed to file a schedule of his worldly effects, though he did so in a languid way that showed how useless he thought the whole business would prove to be, At 2 o'clock Black & Pugh received the following message from the clerk of the Circuit Court at Toledo: "In case of Berringer against Berringer, divorce granted. With the knowledge that Berringer was single man, the attorneys wanted nothing easier than to work upon a judgment rendered against him and his own sworn statement of his effects. The latter came in by messenger at 5 o'clock yesterday afnoon, and before 6 o'clock an execution had been issued and they were stored away in the office of Magistrate Lockman, goods in value several times greater than the amount of the judgment and costs. A chest of carpenter's tools, which Berringer found in his room on West Market street and carried into the courtroom. A watch, which is in pawn with a money lender, was Berringer knew nothing of the levying on his property at 6 o'clock last night, but will doubtless suspect that the constables have been to see him when he returns to his room. He did not know of the decree of divorce, which places him beyond the right to take advantage of an exemption law, which applies to married men only. The judgment in the case was probably granted before the divorce was granted in Toledo, but the execution was not issued until the message from Toledo gave the information that Berringer is a single man. Berringer will probably call upon Mag-istrate Lockman this morning to learn what became of his chest of tools, and will probably be surprised when he learns how he was trapped.
